

COL SOLARE WINERY

OVERVIEW Col Solare Winery represents an architectural confluence of old and modern-world aesthetics which are rooted in tradition and history much like the two wine producers. This confluence is realized in a traditional barrel chai that flows into a modern cellar and old-world bell tower, and ultimately into a reception area dominated by new-world design.

Col Solare was built on Red Mountain high above the Yakima and Columbia Rivers. The winery was situated on the 40-acre site to offer a commanding view over its fan-shaped vineyard of Mount Adams, Mount Rainier and the Horse Heaven Hills.

APPELLATION Red Mountain

LAND ACQUIRED 40 acres, of which the vineyard comprises 28.10 acres

WINERY SIZE 18,650 square feet

CRUSH CAPACITY 325 tons

CELLAR Winemakers follow the Antinori winemaking philosophy of simplicity, versatility and efficiency in the endless pursuit of quality. Modern technology creates many options for the team and allows for gentle handling of the fruit, beginning with hand-picked grapes that leave the de-stemmer as virtually 100% whole berries to fermenters flexible enough to adapt to each grape lot's style to a press that can yield free-run quality juice.

BARREL ROOMS Three barrel rooms, individually temperature controlled, hold three Col Solare vintages over 26 months. The 100-barrel chai features the winemaker's favorite barrels of the forthcoming blend. Once in the barrel, all wine is handled by gravity, and barrels are topped once or twice monthly.

BARREL TYPE New tight-grained, thin-staved oak; primarily French with some American depending on the vintage.

BELL TOWER 56' from outside finished grade

BELL Cast iron—1,000 pounds, 36" tall and 40" diameter at the base

ARCHITECT Boxwood, Seattle

GUEST AMENITIES Visitors are welcome in small groups and by appointment only. Please contact 509/588-6806 or info@colsolare.com for inquiries or appointments.
